It has become increasingly apparent that there is a need for a managerial-administrative formation for those who will be responsible for the Church's material goods.

In raising awareness of this great need, not only have future priests and the economists of individual dioceses responded, but also members of the Church hierarchy, who are ready to contribute to a solution.

The Pontifical University of the Holy Cross has organized a course of formation for priests, lay persons and members of religious orders who work for the Church in economic and administrative capacities.

The Church needs to be exemplary in the stewardship of her material assets in order to give testimony to the gospel. The pastoral use of her material assets is a constitutive element of the Church, and the correct dealing with money is an important element of the spirituality of any person entrusted with leadership roles. Unlike secular business schools where students learn to create wealth and build businesses, this program will focus on how to serve the poor effectively and how to use the material assets of the Church honestly, according to Canon Law and good managerial practices in conformity with the principles of Catholic Social Teaching.

The course is the philosophical introduction to the program.

- Comparative Law and Economics – Financial Vatican Law

Prof. Angelini - 12h

The course will introduce students to the economic analysis of law and to a comparative knowledge of legal concepts of law, in order to provide them with tools to a better understanding of different legal systems and foreign rules. The course aims also at giving an overview of the various Vatican laws regulating Church finance.

- The Social Teaching of the Church on Labor and Business

Prof. Schlag - 8 h

The course examines current and classical ethical issues in Catholic Social Teaching, and applies theories of economic justice to Church management. It discusses rights and obligations of workers, the just treatment of Church employees, and labor legislation.

- Economic Foundations

Prof. Griffiths - 10 h

Catholic Leadership Institute - 12 h

Term 2 – Management and finance

- Governance Design and Transparency in Ecclesiastic Organizations

Prof. Seegers - 12 h

In the last decades governance has become a very popular topic especially because of famous scandals and corporate frauds that in some cases have generated huge systemic crises (e.g. Lehman Brothers) also in ecclesiastic organizations. This increasing interest implies a call for a deep understanding of what the core governance principles are and how they should be implemented.

The course presents both the governance theories and their practical implications in particular in terms of transparency with the aim of helping students to develop a critical understanding of ownership structures and governance mechanisms to correctly address related problems.

- The Theory of Economics of Management & Organization Design

Prof. Boccardelli/Prof. Dandi – 16 h

Organizations today have to face an increasing array of choices regarding markets, locations for key activities, outsourcing and ownership modes. Thus the first objective of the course is to provide students with a managerial approach towards economic issues, offer practical tools to judge critical choices and advance sustainable solutions. The second objective is to present to the students the practical implications of these choices in terms of organization design. Students will learn the main organizational models, the mechanisms which explain the functioning of an organization and how to setup a design process practically.

- Pastoral People Management

Prof. Giustiniano/Prof. Harmon – 12h

The management of persons is a critical factor for organizations in order to provide “value” to the “client” (i.e. people they are supposed to serve), and more in general to all the kinds of stakeholders involved within the community where they are located. All aspects related to human resources (i.e. including acquiring, preparing, developing, and compensating employees, the work-life-family balance) can help organizations to meet their challenges. Thus an effective people management, especially in an ecclesiastic organization, requires an awareness of broader contextual issues, such as changes in the labor force and legal issues.

- Church Communications and Accountability to the Faithful

Prof. Mendoza – 12 h

With all of the improvements in communications technology, the diffusion of Christ's message and the communication of Church events is vastly different today than it was just a few years ago. This course is devoted to introduce students to the proper use of the Web (i.e. social media, blogs, etc.) and how the Church's message can be communicated more effectively and completely, especially regarding economic affairs of the Church.

- Fundraising

Prof. Brach – 12 h

This module is designed to introduce students to two main perspectives of fundraising: first, using fundraising as a strategic way to engage people, endorse projects and to raise the awareness regarding the relevance of some activities at the institutional level; second, presenting the main practical techniques to perform an effective fundraising (donations, crowd-funding, EU and other public funds etc.)

- Entrepreneurial Lab for Social Impact Projects

Prof. Mongelli – 12h

The course introduces students to the concept of social innovation and its application in the form of entrepreneurial projects aimed at addressing some of the world's social problems creatively and proactively.

Topics will include innovative socially sustainable entrepreneurial models, based on public/private partnerships, blended financial models and the up-and-coming field of social entrepreneurship. Students will also learn how to deal with the essential stages needed to develop the seed of an idea towards an effective, economically sustainable and social-impact oriented project

- Project Management

Prof. Nenni – 16h

The main objectives of the course are: to understand how to deal with project costs; to provide students with a comprehensive perspective on risk management; to understand critical success factors in project management; to empower personnel with the vocabulary, knowledge and competences to execute project supporting roles; to organize projects in a more efficient and structured manner using modern project management concepts and methods.

- Planning and Controls

Prof. Zurlo – 12 h

The course objective is focused on the planning and controls tools used in the forecasting, reporting and analysis processes, and how to implement a quality management system in the Curch.

- Finance, Assets and Real Estate Management as Stewardship

Prof. Oriani - 20 h

This first part of the course introduces the main principles of finance for organization, such as the weighted average cost of capital, the optimal capital structure, capital budgeting and cash flow analysis.

The second part of the course provides students with an overview of how a portfolio of investments should be managed according to the related risk and expected economic return in the financial market, the economic mechanisms at the base of the real estate value chain and the strategies to preserve the economic value of a real estate endowment.

- Crisis Management

Prof. Keppel – 12 h

Crisis management is one of the most critical activities that needs to be managed in the face of critical events that have the potential to seriously threaten and harm the organization, its stakeholders, or the general public.

When crisis occurs, good managers have to learn how to deal with a lack of internal procedures, uncertainty and short decision time.

Final field work: Facing Ethical Challenges in a social or Church impact project

On the basis of the managerial tools acquired during the entire master, students can perform their final paper in two fashions:

1. By addressing a social issue through an entrepreneurial project, which should be not profit-driven but economically sustainable.
2. By proposing a set of managerial solutions aimed at improving the economic sustainability and efficiency of existing Church Organizations.
